Lines of communication: In order that your query/concern/issue may be addressed appropriately and in a timely manner, please recall that the lines of communication are;

1. The subject or homeroom teacher
2. Followed by programme coordinator, (PYPC, MYPC, DPC), or counsellor for pastoral care matters. Click on this link to find out more on pastoral care.
3. Then Deputy Head of School (DHoS), Ms Phinney, deputyheadofschool@baliis.net

Ms Phinney is our DHoS and she oversees all matters concerning academics and pastoral care. If the matter concerns Indonesian SPK regulations, then our SPK Principal, Ms Yunita, myunita@baliis.net is the contact person.

The Head of School (HoS), oversees all other matters non-academic.

School Whatsapp number: If you do not already have a Whatsapp account, we strongly advise downloading the app. Note that if you are to receive EMERGENCY notifications, e.g. sudden school closure, you will need to add our school number to your Whatsapp contacts as this is the platform we currently use to communicate emergencies. Our number is; +62 8133 874 9987

Parent volunteers: we would love to have parent voice and input into our school policies. We are seeking parental involvement into a variety of policies, e.g. language policy, academic integrity policy etc. If you feel you could offer some constructive feedback or input, please contact me at headofschool@baliis.net, putting Policy review as the subject.

Lunch providers: we have a potential new lunch provider who would like to conduct some research first. Please help them develop their menu by completing this very short survey. They will focus on French and international food with particular attention to vegan and vegetarian dishes.

Toddle: recall that we have a new school platform Toddle where you can keep abreast of your child's progress, attendance, behaviour, homework, assessments and a whole host of other data to keep you informed. If you need help in accessing and navigating Toddle, please do contact Ibu Ayu, our Data Coordinator and Toddle expert at datacoordinator@baliis.net

Conferences: next month, we will have our first learning conferences. Parents new to Bali Island School may not be familiar with our processes for conducting these conferences. We have two approaches, 3-way conferences where the discussion is largely driven by the teacher, with relevant input from parents and students. Later in the school year, we have 3-way conferences again, but we refer to them as student-led conferences (SLCs) due to increased student involvement at that stage. SLCs are a modern and common approach to conferences which gives students lots more accountability and ownership of their learning process. Read here, more about the benefits of student-led conferences.

School closures: recall that on Tuesday 26th September, we are closed half day, school closes at 1200. Also, school is closed ALL day for a national holiday on Thursday 28th September.

The IB Learner Profile at school and at home

The first month of school it is essential for teachers to establish routines and build relationships with their students. At Bali Island School, our teachers have used the International Baccalaureate (IB) learner profile attributes as a jump off point to establish classroom culture and align with our mission of “empowering globally minded learners”.

The IB learner profile is a set of ten attributes that aims to develop well-rounded, globally aware individuals. These attributes not only play a crucial role in a child's education but can also be cultivated at home. In this article, we'll explore how parents can support the 10 attributes of the IB learner profile and how they connect with the concept of international mindedness.

Inquirers

Encourage your child to ask questions, explore their interests, and seek answers through books, the internet, and real-life experiences. Support their curiosity and provide them with resources to foster their inquisitive nature.

Knowledgeable

Create a home environment that values learning. Read books, watch educational documentaries, and engage in discussions on various subjects to broaden your child's knowledge base. Encourage them to develop a love for lifelong learning. A broad knowledge base enables children to better understand global issues, fostering a sense of global citizenship.

Thinkers

Promote critical thinking by asking open-ended questions and encouraging your child to solve problems independently. Encourage them to analyze situations and consider multiple perspectives before forming conclusions.

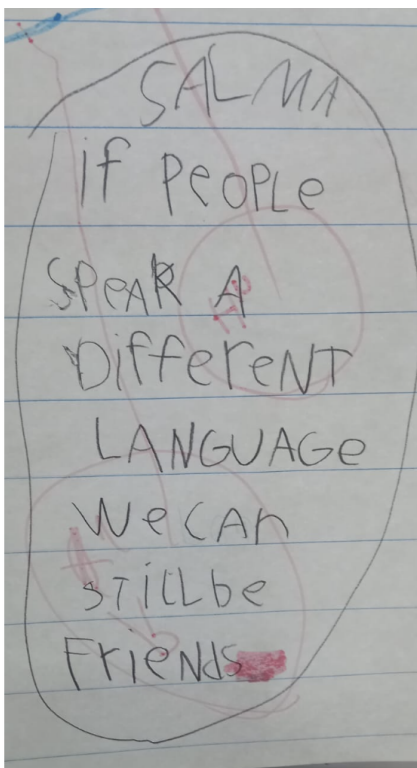

Communicators

Foster effective communication skills by actively listening to your child, encouraging them to express their thoughts and feelings, and engaging in meaningful conversations. Model clear and respectful communication.

Principled

Teach your child about ethics, integrity, and responsibility. Set a good example by demonstrating honesty, fairness, and a strong moral compass in your own actions. Teaching ethics and responsibility instills values that transcend cultural boundaries, promoting ethical decision-making in a global context.

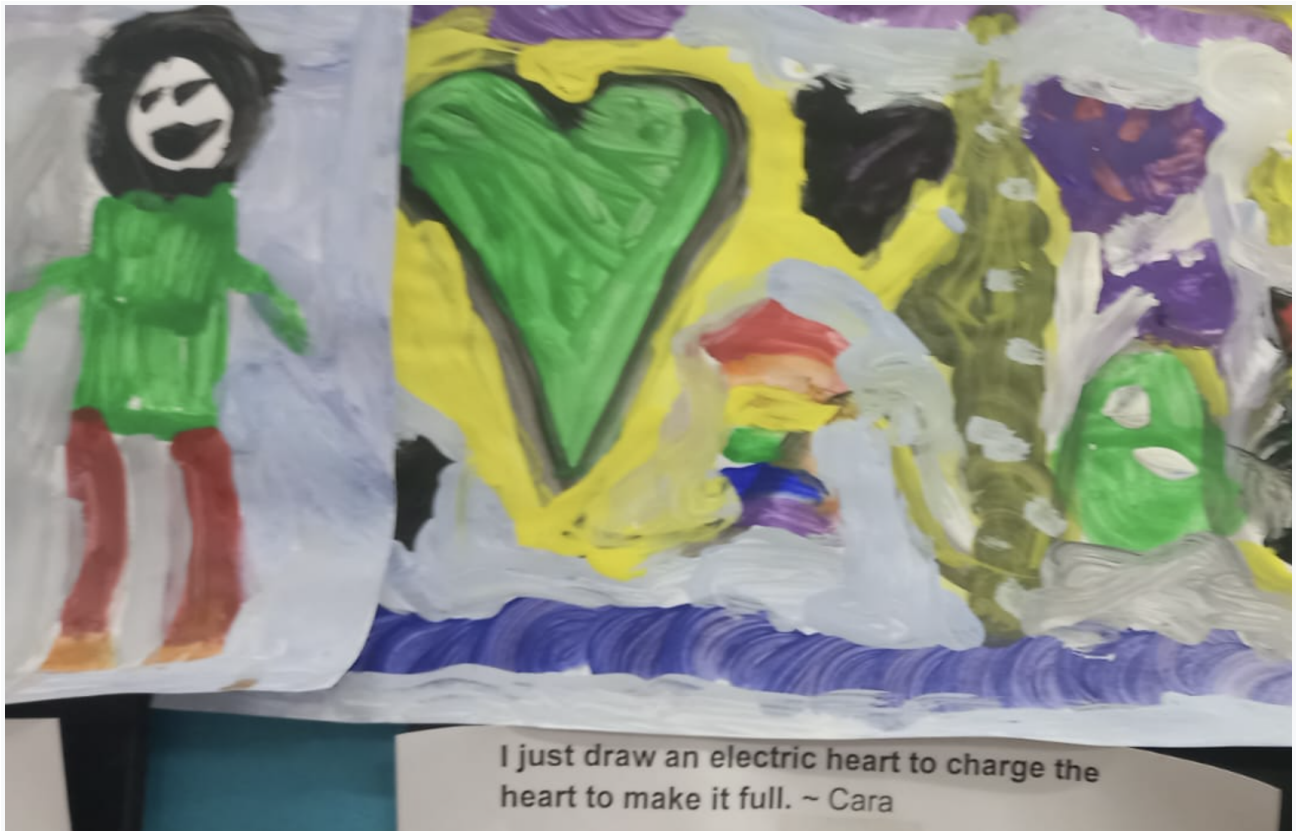

Open-minded

Expose your child to different cultures, beliefs, and perspectives. Celebrate diversity and encourage them to embrace and respect differences in others. Discuss global issues to expand their worldview. Encouraging curiosity and open-mindedness helps children appreciate diverse perspectives, cultures, and worldviews, promoting international understanding.

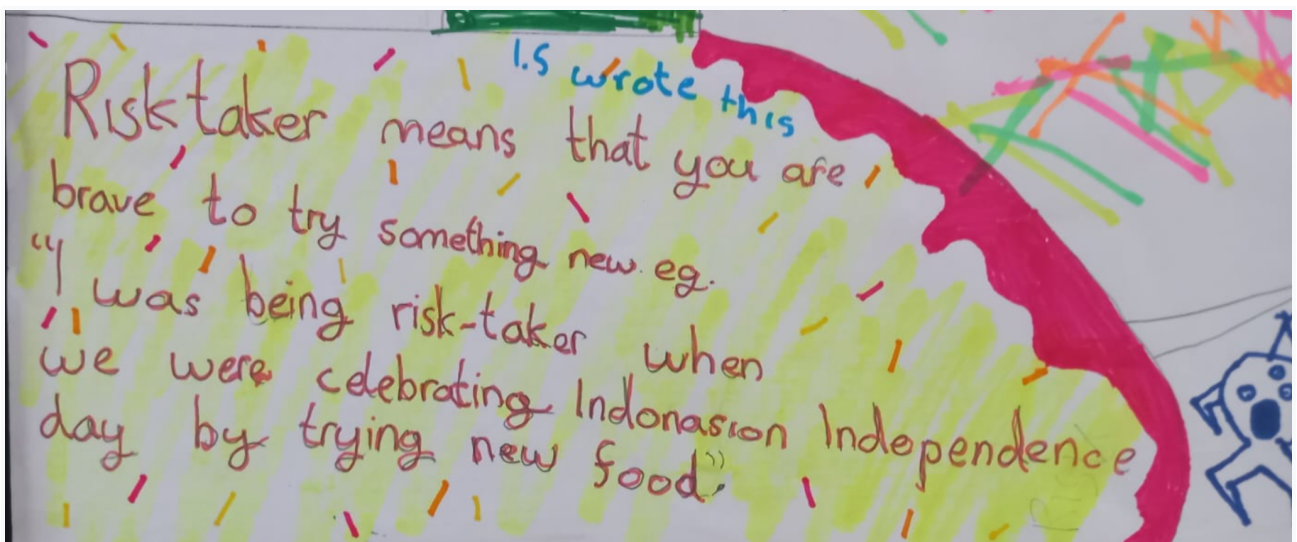

Caring

Teach empathy by involving your child in acts of kindness and community service. Encourage them to show compassion and concern for others' well-being, both in your immediate community and globally. A caring disposition motivates children to address global inequalities and contribute to making the world a more equitable place.

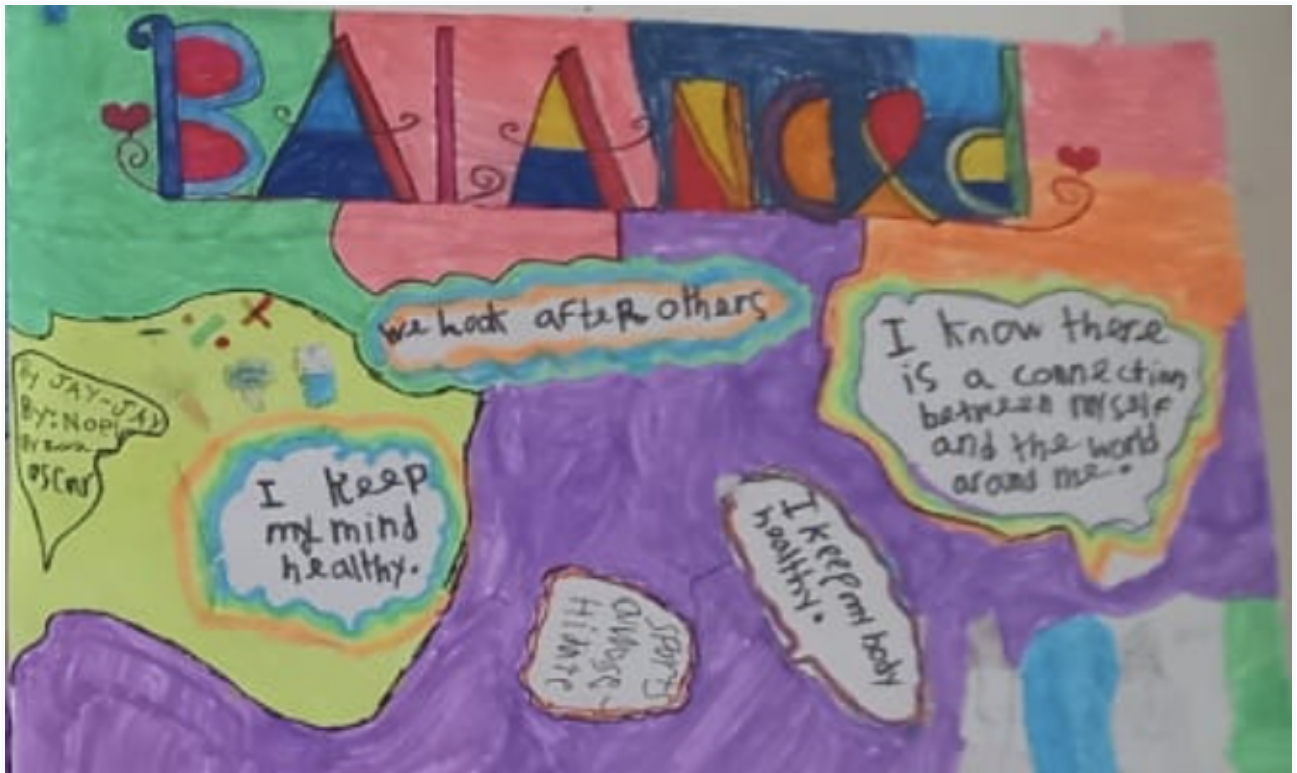

Risk-takers

Support your child in trying new activities, taking on challenges, and stepping outside their comfort zone. Emphasize the importance of resilience and learning from failures.

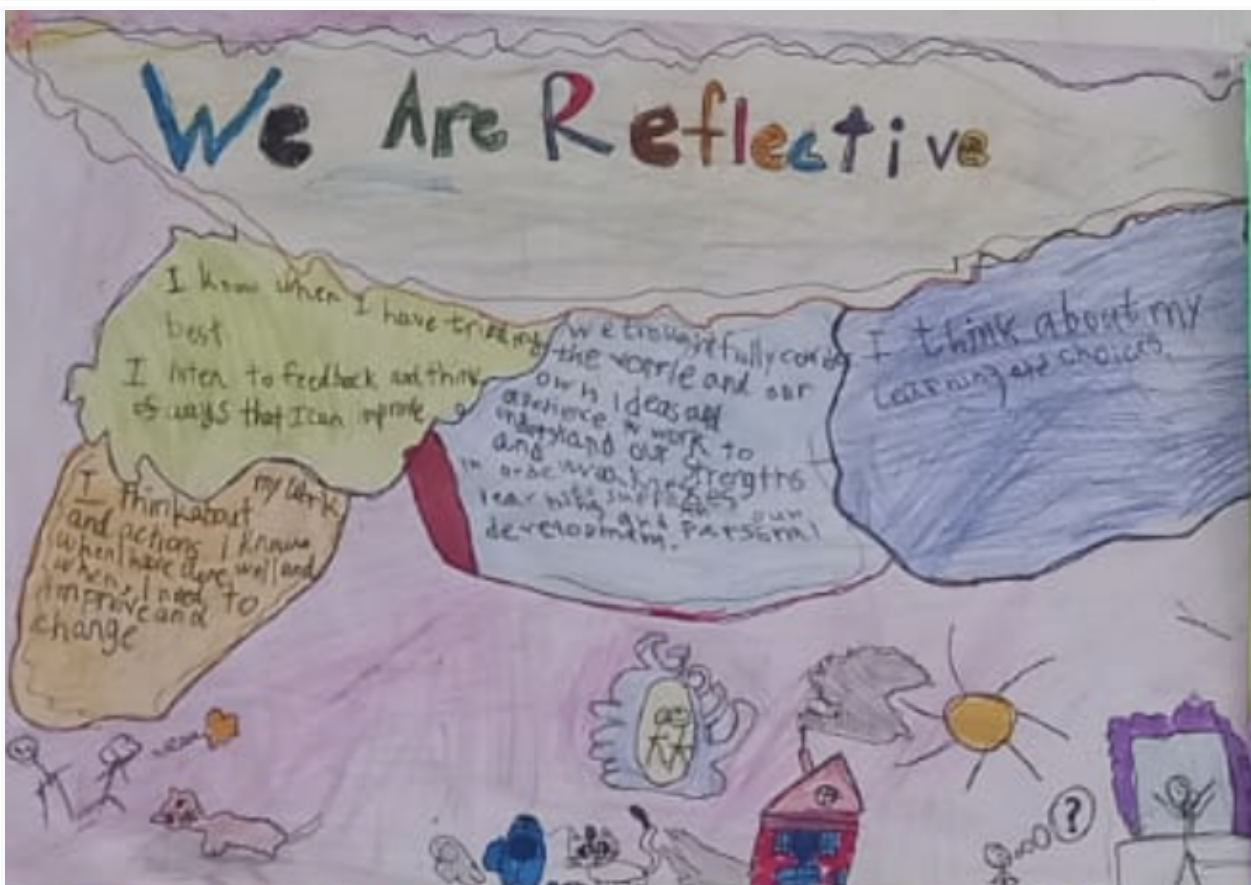

Balanced

Help your child establish a healthy balance between academic, extracurricular, and personal life. Encourage physical activity, mindfulness, and relaxation techniques to promote overall well-being.

Reflective

Encourage your child to think critically about their experiences, actions, and decisions. Foster self-awareness by asking questions that prompt self-reflection and growth. Self-reflection empowers children to analyze global challenges and engage in thoughtful solutions.

Supporting the 10 attributes of the IB learner profile at home not only enhances your child's education but also helps nurture their sense of international mindedness. By fostering these attributes, parents play a crucial role in preparing their children to thrive in an increasingly interconnected and diverse world, where global awareness and empathy are essential qualities for success and positive global citizenship. Here are some fun challenges you can try at home to build on your learner profile attributes.

Home/Family

 Inquirer Create at least three open-ended questions you would like to find out about someone in your family. How can you find the answers?	Thinker Identify a problem in your home. It could be a messy room, chores not being done, parents losing their keys... Think of a way to solve the problem.	Communicator Think of someone in your family you have not spoken to for a while. Decide on a form of communication to reach out to them and reconnect.
 Risk Taker Try something new! It could be a new food, a new sport, a new language... anything, it's your choice!	Knowledgeable Create a presentation in the style of your choice to share the knowledge you have about your family.	Principled Look for an opportunity to make a positive, fair or honest choice in a family situation.
 Caring Take action to show your family that you care about them.	Open-Minded Talk about a current event with a family member. Talk about your perspectives and opinions on the issue.	Balanced Keep a log of your screen time and active living. Do you feel like you are balancing the two? What can you do to ensure this is balanced?

Take time to reflect on how you feel after you complete each PYP Learner Profile.

Grade 3/4 students were actively engaged to identify and recognize the children's rights as part of diving deeper into their unit of inquiry-Sharing the Planet. It was an inspiring moment to watch the way our students make connections from the motivational book 'Dreams of Freedom' by Amnesty International. Our students even took one step forward to advocate the rights of children by participating in the Visible Thinking Routine-Circles of Actions. It was an awe-struck moment to witness how our students showcased the rights from local to global context after having an enriching discussion with their peer group.

Parent Communication Delegate Meetings

PCD Meetings with our Deputy & HoS will resume later this month. This is a program where members of the community can submit questions or feedback to be answered or addressed by the school administration and/or school Board.

Is your child having trouble settling in to Bali?

Hello Bali Island School parents,

If you have recently moved to Bali with your children and if they are finding it hard to settle in, this Counselor Corner is for you.

Supporting children who are struggling with the transition to Bali, and helping them manage their emotions during this adjustment period, is crucial. Here are some tips on providing emotional support to your child:

Open Communication

Encourage your child to express their feelings openly. Let them know that it's okay to feel sad, anxious, or confused. Create a safe and non-judgmental space for them to share their emotions. It is important to note that validating how hard the move has been for them does not mean you are agreeing to move back.

Active Listening:

When your child talks about their feelings, listen attentively. Show empathy and understanding. Avoid rushing to offer solutions; sometimes, children just need someone to listen to them. Summarising what your child has told you to you and telling it back to them in your own words can work wonders.

Normalise Their Emotions:

Explain that it's normal to feel a mix of emotions when going through a big change like moving to a new country. Let them know that adults also feel uncertain in new situations.

Maintain Routines:

Establish and maintain daily routines as much as possible. Familiar routines can provide a sense of stability and security, which can help ease anxiety.

Stay Connected:

Encourage your child to keep in touch with friends and family from your previous location. Video calls/messages, letters, or postcards can maintain these important connections.

Involve Them in Decisions:

Whenever possible, involve your child in decisions related to their new life in Bali. This can give them a sense of control and ownership over their situation.

Cultural Exploration:

Explore Bali's culture together. Attend local festivals, visit temples, and learn about Balinese traditions. This can help your child feel more connected to their new environment.

Encourage Friendships:

Help your child make new friends in Bali. Arrange playdates or join local clubs and activities where they can meet other children their age.

Self-Care:

Don't forget about your own emotional well-being. When parents are stressed or anxious, it can affect their children. Take care of yourself so that you can better support your child.

Books and Stories:

Sometimes, children find it easier to relate to fictional characters going through similar experiences. Reading books or stories about children moving to new places can be comforting and educational.

Remember that every child is unique, and their adjustment period may vary. It's essential to be patient and provide ongoing emotional support throughout the transition. Over time, most children adapt and thrive in their new environment, but the process can take time and may include ups and downs along the way.
